SEVEN BLOCKS ARE DESTROYED

Flames Brought Under Control After Many Hours Battle By Firemen

(International News Service)

NORFOLK, Va., June 8.—

With more than 20 persons injured and damage estimated as high as $5,000,000, a fierce fire which raged in Norfolk's business district was brought under control early today.

Seven blocks were destroyed before rain aided firemen of Norfolk and a half a dozen neighboring cities to stop the advance of the flames. Marines and sailors from Hampton Roads also helped combat the fire.

Twenty-four firemen were removed to hospitals, suffering from burns and the effects of smoke.

Started By Blast

The fire started when an explosion rocked an oil barge at the wharf near the business section. The flames, fanned by a wind from the sea, spread rapidly to adjoining docks and then engulfed the business district. The residential sections were in danger when the fire was finally conquered.

The Buxton line steamer David was burned, but other boats were moved to safety.

The Victoria Hotel was destroyed. Many guests lost all their belongings.

Other buildings destroyed were those occupied by the American Peanut Corporation, National Bag and Paper Company, Rosedale Dairy, Crockin-Levy Store, Swift & Company, and City Hay and Grain Company.

Many warehouses and plants in the old section of the city were destroyed.

It rained Sunday and then some.

A lot of local golfers were deeply disappointed over the fact too, and out at the Municipal course, and order was issued during the afternoon, banning golf for the day. The fairways were veritable lakes in places.

There was a happy look on the faces of a majority of students wending their way toward school this morning. Tomorrow sees the windup of the present school season, and little work was in store for today.

There were plenty of Westminister alumni and friends here who braved last night's hard rainstorm to hear Dr. W. Charles Wallace preach his final baccalaureate sermon in the capacity of president. He retires with the ending of the college year.

German Leaders Confer With British Prime Minister Refuse Interviews

By OTTO D. TOLISCHUS

LONDON, June 8.—While a cloak of diplomatic secrecy descended today upon the actual conversations between British and German ministers at Chequers, the eyes of all Europe were focused on the proposed visit of secretary of state Henry L. Stimson and secretary of the treasury Andrew Mellon.

Secretary Mellon and Secretary Stimson expect to sail for Europe late this month. Secretary Stimson announced that he would confer with European leaders while abroad. Although they definitely announced that their trip would be made unofficially, it was evident here that they will probably be called upon to discuss reparations, the primary topic of discussion at Chequers.

Baccalaureate Service Sunday

Ben Franklin Auditorium Is Filled For Senior Class Service

DR. G. S. BENNETT MAKES ADDRESS

Two hundred and six seniors, members of the senior high school graduating class, were challenged to repay in life through mutual service and co-operation the many debts they owe mankind in the baccalaureate sermon on "Our Unpaid Debts", delivered by Dr. G. S. Bennett, pastor of the First Christian church, in the Ben Franklin junior high school auditorium last night.

A pelting downpour which broke half an hour before the service started, failed to keep away a throng of nearly 1,100. Parents and friends of the class members and members of different congregations of the city, their services suspended for the evening, attended.

Dr. Bennett, whose son is a member of the class, took for the baccalaureate scripture I Romans, verses 8 to 17, the keynote text of which was 14th verse: "I am debted both to Greek and barbarian, to the wise and foolish."

Rev. Sleepy Assists

Officiating throughout the service was the Rev. David D. Sleepy, pastor of the Mahoning M. E. church. He read the Scripture, pronounced prayer and offered both the invocation and benediction. The processional march of the seniors, led by Prof. Frank L. Orth, principal, with Regis McAuley, class president, at his side, was played by the orchestra, directed by J. F. Replogle, senior high instrumental music supervisor. The orchestra also played the recessional strains when the service ended.

"La Raine de Sabe", the finely composed work of Gounod, was played for the processional march, while for the recessional the orchestra played "Marche Militaire", by Schubert.

Unlike in past baccalaureates here, the class members, marching in single file fashion, separated into two marching lines on entering the auditorium. One line of graduates proceeded slowly down one aisle, while another marched to their places down another.

The audience had a share in last night's service as well, another departure from the usual custom. At the opening of the service "America, the Beautiful" was sung and at the close the audience joined in on that impressive hymn, "God of Our Fathers".

Choir Also Sings

Two special numbers were sung by the senior high choir, composed of students of the school. "In Thee Do I Put My Trust", by Seville, was the first, and "When Through the Night", by Liszt-Clark, was the second. Miss Mary Long, director of vocal music at the school, was (Continued On Page Ten)

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, June 8.—Almost 600 miles at sea, the submarine Nautilus was plunging through smooth seas on the first leg of its North Pole expedition, radio messages here said today. After two days of rough weather, the submarine encountered calmer waters and reported making good progress. The Nautilus is off the New England coasts and will proceed to England for a short stop before taking off for the Arctic, where the expedition commander, Sir Hubert Wilkins, will attempt to cross the North Pole, making scientific observations beneath the ice. Radio messages said the Nautilus passed through the warm gulf stream on Sunday.

Italian-Vatican Disagreement Is Close To Crisis

Several Evidences Of Amicable Settlement Are In Offing

GOVERNMENT HAS IGNORED NOTES

Paetical Agreement Is Believed Reached By Emisaries Of Both Parties

By GUGLIELMO EMANUEL

International News Service Staff Correspondent

ROME, June 8.—The long drawn controversy between church and state appeared today to be nearing a crisis, with several evidences of an amicable settlement in the offing.

Although the government climaxed there or four days of an apparent "truce" by a radio broadcast in which it reviewed the dispute and reiterated its reasons for suppressing the Azione Cattolica, the continued silence of the Vatican was seen as indicative of its increasing desire for peace.

Partial Agreement

Negotiations between the emissaries of the two parties were believed to have reached a partial agreement that would allow for the reopening of the church societies, one of the main causes for the rupture. In such an event, the government would have to approve the pope's action in placing bishops directly in charge of the associations. But Pope Pius would have to guarantee the Quirinal that the organizations would confine their activities to religion and refrain from participation in politics.

The one major obstacle in the path of a reconciliation was the government's refusal to reply to the Vatican's three notes, protesting against the recent anti-clerical demonstrations and attacks and demanding apologies and reparations.

It was hinted in some quarters, however, that an official agreement might be reached in secret that would remove the Vatican's smart under such a rebuff. Practically all of the agreements before the Lateran treaty was signed were reached in sub rosa conferences and it was believed that the same practice might be used to definitely end the present unpleasantness.

DANGLES FROM PLANE THEN SAVES SELF WITH KNIFE

Dangling in the air 45 minutes from an airplane from which he had jumped in a parachute, over Champaign, Ill., Private Harold Osborne had the narrowest possible escape from death. A knife was finally handed to him from another plane with which he cut himself loose and landed with his emergency chute. Here is a remarkable photo just before the rescue of Osborne, inset.

Will Rogers says: "Every nation, and every individual, their principal worry is 'debt.' What would be the matter with this, for relieving practically everybody's 'depression' by just calling all debts off?"

There can't be over a half dozen men in the world that are owed more than they owe, so you wouldn't be hurting many, and besides, if you do give them some worry, that's what they had everybody else doing for years.

It's not supply and demand, it's Old Man Interest that's got the world by the ears. This would give a great temporary relief to 99 per cent and wouldn't hurt the other long, for they would soon have it back again. I make it a motion, do I hear a second?

Lowest Fatality Record Since Open Motoring Season Began

(International News Service)

Driving rainstorms, in some instances reaching almost cloud-burst proportions, resulted in the lowest Pennsylvania week-end fatality toll recorded since the advent of the open motoring season, a checkup by International News Service revealed today.

Four persons were killed and twelve injured, none believed seriously, in a series of mishaps. Of those killed, one man lost his life when struck by a railroad train at Sharon.

No Deaths In East

A feature of the week-end traffic toll was the report from the heavily populated urban district of Philadelphia and environs. Not one person was killed in motor vehicle accidents in the eastern section of the state, a sharp and unexpected recession from previous week-ends.

In two of the crashes, one of which resulted in the death of a companion of the driver, the drivers were held on a charge of driving while intoxicated.

The fatality toll follows: Sharon: Albert Johnson, 50, killed instantly when struck by Erie Railroad freight train.

Freedom: Lewis Butts, 25, negro, fatally hurt when machine in which he was riding crashed into pole. Driver arrested charged with driving while intoxicated.

Pittsburgh: Six injured in a series of city traffic crashes. Harrisburg: Child slightly hurt (Continued On Page Two)

Arrest Alleged Reckless Drivers

State Highway Patrol Takes 10 Into Custody In Atlantic Avenue

Alleged reckless operation of automobiles in Atlantic Avenue, outside the city limits, resulted last night in the arrest of 10 automobile drivers, according to state highway patrolmen. The highway patrolmen indicated today that the drive to eliminate hazardous operation of motor cars is not finished.

Patrolmen Sarko and Ardinger were detailed by State Highway Patrolman Lawton last night to apprehend the alleged reckless operators and after darkness they went to the Atlantic avenue section. By the time they returned to the local substation 10 drivers had been arrested.

During the past two weeks the state highway patrol here has been decidedly active relative to the overloading of trucks, operation of cars with one headlight and the employment of plates other than those assigned to cars. Drivers without operators licenses have also fallen into their custody.

The alleged reckless operators will be given hearings before various aldermen.

Some folks like golf for their exercise, and some like swinging a sledge, and some like hikes for a couple of hours, and some like to trim a hedge. There are other folks who get exercise in planting and trimming flowers, and still some more who play contract bridge or cribbage for hours and hours. But for genuine three star exercise, for maiden, or man or lass, there is nothing that quite gets the same results as an hour's moving the grass. That push and pull as you plod your course over level and hedge and back, puts callouses on your fingers and thumbs, and you think that your legs will crack. But it's exercise and it helps the lawn, though it's nearly dark when you're through, it's better than golf, and you walk much more, the weather is sixty two.

Four Wounded As Hoodlums Attack Dayton City Jail

Gunmen Spatter Bullets At Jail, Three Prisoners, And Policeman Wounded

SEEK MOTIVE FOR UNUSUAL ATTACK

(International News Service)

DAYTON, O., June 8.—A policeman and three prisoners were wounded here today when four men driving slowly by the Ford street police station opened fire and riddled the building with shotgun pellets. The hoodlums then "stepped on the gas" and sped away.

The prisoners wounded by the scattered shot were Vincent Nagy, 19; George Clark, 40, of Sioux City, Ia., and Alfred Berry, 28, negro.

Patrolman George Reese, who was acting as turnkey at the jail, was nipped by a few of the shotgun pellets and was cut by flying glass as it cracked under the gunfire and showered over the jail office.

Police believe the motive of the four hoodlums was either to effect a jailbreak or "to get" one of the prisoners in order to silence him from divulging any underworld information.

The alleged reckless operators will be given hearings before various aldermen.

Cardamone shot and killed his wife in her hotel room here yesterday and then sent a bullet into his own body with the same gun, police reported.

Police reported that Mrs. Cardamone had complained to them earlier in the day of her husband's attempts to enter her room in the hotel. The husband then went to the police station here and recited the details of his estrangement to the officers, after which he returned to the hotel.

A room clerk accompanied Mr. Cardamone and her husband as they entered the woman's room ostensibly to talk about their marital difficulties.

The clerk left a short time later, allowing Cardamone and his wife to remain together. The volley of shots soon rang out and guests found the couple shot to death in the room.

Debt Settlement
An article in the London Express today was seen as the opening of a barrage to force the United States to cancel the war debts. The article said:

"The first move toward the settlement of the problems should come from America. It is fundamentally wrong that Great Britain should pay a hundred cents on the dollar for war supplies that were intended for a common purpose."

"The War supplies purchased at a price which put millions of pounds profit in the coffers of United States steel companies."

STAR LORE
HOW MOON'S VAST PLAINS MAY HAVE SUNK
By Arthur Dev. Carpenter

The consideration of the moon's surface brings us to an interesting theory advanced by the late Joseph Barrell. This theory deals with those large dark markings on the moon that were named "maria" or seas by Galileo. These great lava plains on the moon were formed by melting its way up through the outer crust, of very hot liquid matter that heavy inner lunar matter came up through melted holes, and overflowed the plains, the plains sank under the weight. These circular dark plains are known to be 10,000 feet lower than the bright higher areas surrounding them. In like manner Barrell held earth's ocean beds were deepened.

Defiant and indignant, strike leaders charged the state troopers charged into their ranks without warning, flaying right and left with riot sticks and hurling tear gas bombs. Several scores of women howled with their menfolk, were bowled over by the troopers' charge, the miners said.

PITTSBURGH, June 8.—Latent bitterness of the 1927 bituminous coal strike flared into open violence in Pennsylvania impoverished soft coal field today in a welter of rioting, broken heads, threats and vandalism.

Stubborn riots raged along a 70-mile front at the break of dawn with strikers and state troopers seeking ascendancy. Reports filtering in from the bituminous coal fields indicated 45 mounted and foot police-men had succeeded in quelling disturbances in which 2,000 miners participated.

Scores Injured.
A score of miners and a state trooper were clubbed during a riot near the Midland No. 3 mine of the Pittsburgh Coal company at Westland. Fifteen troopers were forced to fling tear gas bombs into the ranks of 700 marching strikers to disperse the marchers.

Tear gas bombs and riot clubs were used freely when a ragged file of miners, armed with nondescript weapons—clubs, rocks and anything else handy—fought coal and iron police who had harried them since behind a motor truck near Ellsworth.

The rioters were reported to have charged the police, numbering 15 officers, each time retreating in disorder before the acrid fumes of the tear gas bombs.

A hurry call for aid was telephoned to Washington county seat, while the police held a sub-machine gun in readiness. Women and children fought side by side with their menfolk in the riots.

Six members of the state police equipped with sawed-off riot guns and rifles, broke the ragged ranks and rushed to the succor of the besieged coal and iron police. Shots were fired into the air in an attempt to disperse the strikers.

Three men were known to have been arrested in the Ellsworth riot while two were injured seriously enough to require hospital treatment in the Westland distillery.

An autolod of strikebreakers enroute to the Kinloch mine near New Kensington was stopped by miners who had dropped their tools at the operation.

"Trees" At Rotary, Cites Possibilities

Recommendation of the appointment of a municipal shade tree commission which would regulate the planting, trimming and general upkeep of trees in New Castle was offered by City Solicitor Robert M. White in his address on "Trees" at today's luncheon-meeting of the Rotary club.

The city legislative director spoke for some time on the condition of trees locally, declaring that years ago a wide variety of trees grew on the hills surrounding.

He praised certain firms here which offer the services of tree experts and urged residents to seek more advice from them in caring for the trees that happen to stand on their own property.

Dr. Samuel Moore, pastor of the Central Presbyterian church here almost 30 years ago, now attending the commencement program at Westminster college, was a special guest of the membership. Dr. Moore's residence is located now in Florida.

ATTACKING A WOMAN JUDGE

IT USED to be supposed that women law-breakers would get much more fair and lenient consideration if they were arraigned before judges of their own sex instead of before men.

But now New York's famous Samuel Seabury, who has been inquiring into this and that on Manhattan Island, has filed a report declaring Magistrate Jean Norris unfit and urging her removal.

Her unfitness, he asserts, is shown "by her severity, her unjudicial conduct and her callous disregard of the rights of defendants in the women's court."

Bearing in mind the fact that this is simply an accusation and that the truth or falsity of it has not yet been demonstrated, one is nevertheless moved to admit that the sex of an officeholder, by itself, is not very important, after all. To get a kindly, tolerant and capable judge one must give the job to a kindly, tolerant and capable person; whether it be a man or a woman makes little difference.

BETTER ACRES

A century ago landowners of the Atlantic Coast states were making serious objection to development of the Ohio and Mississippi valleys under the homestead law. They feared that the competition of new lands would create a surplus of agricultural products and thus force prices down and ruin their market. In subsequent years every reclamation project in the West aroused the same fears and protests. It is easy today to criticize the lack of vision displayed by these early opponents of immigration, and yet the same cry, in slightly modified form, is now being raised in connection with reclamation projects in the West.

Because agriculture is faced with a serious problem of overproduction, there is a general belief that the reclamation program should be halted until consumption catches up with agricultural output. Such a view is a hasty conclusion that is in no way based on the facts.

While it is true that the United States is producing more wheat, corn and cotton than it can sell at a profit and that the planting of additional acres in these staples would be unwise, it does not necessarily follow that there is a surplus of arable land. Each year the United States imports enough food to put many thousands of acres to work, and with proper irrigation waste lands proposed for reclamation would be suitable for raising these crops.

America's land problem is not that there are too many acres under cultivation, but that too many acres are planted in the same crops and too much poor land is producing poor crops when there are unclaimed acres which, through irrigation, could be made to produce better crops at less cost.

THE NEW BALKANS

"Balkanized" has become a world-by-word for belligerent, internecine and bellicose. The Balkan states have earned the nom de guerre of the powder magazine of Europe, or the world's fight promoters.

Whether the Balkans have just learned of their unenviable reputation or were slow to resent it is not known, but the important thing is they are awake to it and are trying to do something about it.

With rare wisdom for a so-called backward people they have chosen for their cure the promotion of a wide motor tourist speedway all the way from London to Turkey through the beautiful valleys and mountains of the Balkans. They expect to kill two birds with one stone by educating their own people in western culture and opening up their own beautiful scenery, trade advantages and quaint culture to the West. Isolation is good for no race or nation.

It is noteworthy that the ambitious and modern young Turkish government is entering into the plan with enthusiasm. It is in favor of promoting every means of friendly communication between the East, Near East and West.

Did the Pan-American highway connecting the three Americas and now under construction suggest this trans-Europe peaceway, or are both manifestations of the new world-wide hunger for peace and internationalism?

PYRAMIDING MERGERS

Just where the merger trend is heading is a question asked in many business quarters at the present time. There seems to be some reason for expecting mergers of mergers and finally a combination that will include everything. The thing is possible, but not yet probable.

What appears to be more likely is that the present movement toward consolidation will get just so far and then run into difficulties, just as the last combination era did. It is not likely, though, that the difficulties this time will be anti-trust laws and public hysteria.

At the beginning of the present century, in the "trust-busting" days, the populace was tortured by fears of trusts and combines and the "money power." All independent initiative was to be crushed, enterprise frustrated, competition destroyed, labor enslaved. Yet the industrial giants and capitalist barons of that time were pygmies in comparison with those of today.

This change in the public attitude is attributed to several factors. The spread of public ownership of securities in large corporations holds down agitation for restriction of monopolies, which, of course, is one reason the public was permitted to buy these securities. Operations of industrial and trade leaders are on greatly improved lines compared with trust tactics of a quarter century ago. And there is the factor of government regulation, which is not so susceptible as it once was to gifts or favors from those coming under it.

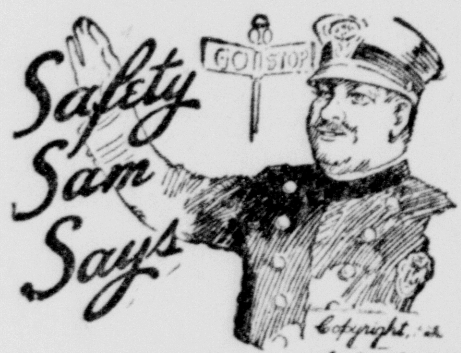

Another depressing thing about the depression is the way the pan-handlers dime you to death.

All Of Us

No Child in the House
It's Lonely Then
Finally You Can't Stand It

By MARSHALL MASLIN

I wrote an article about Getting Away from the Children, and I met a man and he said to me, disappearing: "That's not the whole story. There's another side to it. Children may cramp your style, but how much worse is it if you haven't any children at all—to get away from?" He was right, of course, and I knew it all the time. This is the other side:

They thought: "We need a rest. We'll send the youngster to his grandmother and then there will be Heavenly Peace in the house. We'll do as we please and be free for a week or two. We'll enjoy ourselves without responsibility."

So they did. They sent him away. And for two or three days it was just as they thought it would be: Heavenly Peace and Quiet. They went when and where they wanted to go, all by themselves, and worried about nothing.

When they put things away, they stayed there. . . . The house was immaculate and stayed that way. Meals were orderly. Nobody said: "Tommy, your father is talking—don't interrupt. Tommy, don't speak when your mouth is full! Tommy, wash your hands; Tommy, wash your neck! Tommy, wash your teeth! Tommy, it's time to go to bed!"

Nobody said any of those things, because Tommy—mischievous, obstreperous, laughing, annoying, destructive, healthy and disobedient Tommy—wasn't there. He was miles away with his grandmother. He might be getting cold, he might be falling out of an apple tree and breaking his leg, and his grandmother, in all probability was spoiling him. And father and mother sat at home alone, eating their meals quietly, without a care, without an annoyance in Blissful Peace. Some- one else was worrying about Tommy.

But they couldn't stand it! The house was like a cemetery. They weren't a family any more, they were just two people living within four walls, under a roof. There wasn't any child in the house, so it wasn't a home. Their lives were incomplete. They'd been fed up with a noisy youngster, and now they found themselves fed up with having him away.

So they went—and they got him—and they brought him home. And the first thing he did was climb up to the sink to get himself a glass of water and he dropped it and spilled it over the kitchen floor. But they didn't mind it at all—Tommy was back.

AN IDEALIST

There is living at Yuma, Arizona a remarkable Idealist. He is the Rector there of the Episcopal Church. If any minister of the Christian religion were given his choice of a congregation to which to minister, Yuma would be his last selection. The heat in Summer is so intense that Yale with high honor, winning both Junior and Senior Oration medals and receiving an election to Phi Beta Kappa to say nothing of his popularity with his fellows, he prepared himself for the ministry in a Methodist Theological Seminary and was given as a first appointment the pulpit in the leading Methodist Episcopal Church of New Haven, Conn.

Observe that word "Episcopal." John Wesley is considered the Founder of the Methodist Church but Wesley never left the Church of England and was buried an Episcopalian. The Yuma Rector notwithstanding his father was a Methodist minister, became convinced Wesley was right, that Wesley never intended that his followers should leave the Established Church, and (Continued On Page Five)

GIVE NOTHING, GET NOTHING

You wonder why so many men are so deeply interested in their lodges.

The enthusiasm they manifest each year surprises you.

To you the lodge has become tiresome and uninteresting.

Perhaps you have avoided taking a part which necessitated study of the lines and practice.

You never fully comprehended the ritual.

You have not studied it enough to have it mean more than so many sentences, in fact you often wonder what it is all about.

The fine lessons taught have not impressed you deeply.

They have had no part in making you a better, more sympathetic and understanding person.

You have not permitted yourself to be influenced by the advice and suggestions presented.

It seems sort of perfunctory to you, put together as something necessary for degree work, but meaning- less.

If you would give serious attention to the lessons which your lodge ritual advances and permit them to become influential in your life you would get more out of your lodge membership.

Missing
Occasionally some person of prominence turns up missing, and there is a great hue and cry over the affair. A sensational feature may be attached to such an incident and result in wide publicity, but these are only outstanding instances. Then again The Herald and other newspapers carry advertisements asking information as to the whereabouts of a certain person.

These comparatively few cases, however, do not indicate the large numbers of individuals who disappear annually, who are lost to relatives and friends. In New York alone more than 25,000 were reported missing last year, according to Capt. John H. Ayres of the missing persons bureau. Included in this total were 2450 girls and 3,500 boys.

The many girls who run away from home perhaps show the modern tendencies, the consequences of our exalted freedom. Boys in most instances are sufficiently self-reliant to look after themselves, and little harm may result. But it is dangerous for a girl, says Captain Ayres, who declares it is the fault of the home 99 times out of 100 when a young woman goes out on her own. That may lead to tragedy.

Unpleasant domestic conditions are undoubtedly responsible in a majority of cases when youth severs home ties, and the same may be largely true of adults, men and women fleeing marital disagreements or seeking fresh romances. What becomes of all these thousands? That is the mystery. Many eventually return or are traced. They go to other cities, change their names, take up new avocations, endeavor to get a fresh start in life. Among our teeming millions it is apparently easy to lose ourselves.

Favorable Impression Made By Government Bond Issue

Transaction Intended To Meet Floating Indebtedness
Considered In Connection With Prospects Of Improved Business Conditions

Issuance of Government bonds to the value of $900,000,000 with the purpose of transferring a part of the floating indebtedness to an issue running for 18 years, at 3 1/2 per cent, is accepted by majority opinion as a wise move. There is a warning, however, that it should be accompanied by all possible economy and by a careful check on future appropriations. The transaction, taken with official reports of trade, tends to give a more optimistic outlook for business.

The NEW YORK SUN believes that the results "will indicate at what price the Secretary of the Treasury can refinance the First and Fourth Liberty loans, which total more than $8,000,000,000." The Sun adds: "Most of the First loan carries 3 1/2 per cent, the remainder 4 1/2 per cent. All of the Fourth Liberty loan bears 4 1/2 per cent. The deficit of a billion dollars for the fiscal year will necessitate the sale of other issues this year. The only satisfaction to be gained is that the conditions causing a deficit reduced the cost of borrowing."

"After all the misgivings which were voiced earlier in the year, it is encouraging to find the first step in the borrowing process attended by so few difficulties and so little disturbance," remarks the BALTIMORE SUN, which advises that "although a tax increase may be found desirable a little later to overcome the deficiencies of revenue in future years, the deficit for the current year, and perhaps a part of the deficit for the next fiscal year will have to be met by borrowing."

"It is something the Treasury has not had to do in many years—issue bonds to meet current charges in time of peace," says the YAKIMA DAILY REPUBLIC, with the incidental comment that "the excuse for the terrific and senseless waste at Washington, that this is a big country, is beginning to be less popular." As to the bond issue, the PROVIDENCE JOURNAL declares:

"General conditions could hardly be more favorable to a ready sale of Government bonds. Money rates are exceedingly attractive, from the Government's standpoint. Investors, gripped by a psychology of discouragement to which the depression has given currency, are doubtless eager to buy Treasury bonds. In fact, presumably they are hoping that further long-term issues will be announced in the coming months."

"The Treasury," in the opinion of the CHARLESTON (S. C.) EVENING POST, "has done remarkably well with its short-term paper and no doubt this form of financing public needs would have continued in favor had not the sudden slump in revenues occurred, but there is obviously no use in expecting from normal income to be able to take huge amount of loans that would be necessary to tide the government over. For the United States to have to issue a billion or two of new bonds is not a serious matter. The national debt has been reduced very rapidly since 1919, much more so than the law required, and taxpayers have little or nothing to complain of in this department. Indeed, most of the complaint made has been to the effect that the debt has been reduced too fast, but now that more money is needed, the wisdom of Secretary Mellon's rapid reduction policy becomes apparent."

"The $900,000,000 bond issue at 3 1/2 per cent interest," states the WASHINGTON EVENING STAR, "taken in connection with the report on the first four months of trade in this country made by the director of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, is interpreted as an indication that brighter times are approaching for the business world and that the American public. The bond issue announced by Secretary Mellon is for a long period and at the lowest interest rate since the World War. The Government may be taking this opportunity to do this financing at a low rate of interest in an effort to get the necessary funds on the best terms before there is a real upturn in business, with money rates appreciably higher."

The SPRINGFIELD (MASS.) UNION observes that "the fact that the issue has been limited to $900,000,000 is taken as an indication that, in the opinion of Treasury officials, business conditions may be expected to improve in the near future." The HARTFORD COURANT assumes that "possibly the next issue will have to be at some what higher rate, and probably sound industrial issues will command somewhat less of a premium."

The RICHMOND NEWS LEADER, however, finds a defect in the fact that "a funded debt is a forgotten debt," and advises that "with $800,000,000 of the deficit tucked away in the general debt, the new Congress may be inclined to pile up another vast deficit to satisfy the clamor of demagogues." The NEW-ARK EVENING NEWS suggests:

"The country is living today, as to Federal expenditures, on borrowed money. Roughly speaking, its income is 20 to 25 per cent less than its expenses," and avers that "its plight is much like that of many of the individuals who make it up."

"It is unfortunate that the Treasury did not see the wisdom of this policy a decade ago," says the CLEVELAND PLAIN DEALER, explaining that "had the public debt been allowed to pass into the lock boxes of actual investors at the close of the war, instead of being used so extensively in the employment of the short-term funds of financial institutions, many of the money market disorders and much of the speculative excess of recent years would have been avoided."

Credit to Senator Pat Harrison is given by the CHARLOTTE OBSERVER, in connection with "resort to the long-term bond issue to take the place of the Mellon-advocated tax increase." The NEW ORLEANS TIMES-PICAYUNE, also takes note of the Senators' "pronouncement against Federal tax increases," assuming, at the same time, that his stand "does not bind his party colleagues, however."

"Senator Harrison reminds the country," according to the MORRISTOWN DOMINION-NEWS, "that the government in 1919 adopted a policy that was unanimously approved by not only both political parties but by the financiers of the country. Acting on this policy a sinking fund was created, which was to provide the means for the orderly retirement of the national debt. It was agreed that about 31 years would be a proper time for liquidation. The fact that Secretary Mellon and the administrations with which he has been connected, in their excessive zeal to be able to point to their reduction of the public debt as a major achievement, have not followed this policy but instead have gouged the taxpayer with burdensome tax requirements, over and above those necessary for replenishing the sinking fund and the orderly administration of government, has contributed toward the embarrassment that now faces the government. Over the protest of Congress, the administration has proceeded until we are now seven years ahead of our debt-retirement program."

DAVID BELASCO

It's strange that I should miss him so.

Who never shook his hand.
A friend I was given to know
Or come to understand.

I never at his table sat.
To talk of play and star.
His was a gentle genius that
I looked on from afar.

And now for him the curtain's down—
The play called "Life" is o'er.
And where he fashioned his renown
Belasco works no more.

Never again with magic touch
And insight sure and keen;
With little things which meant so much
His hand will deck the scene.

Some say we cannot mourn as friend
For one we never knew.
But for our joys we all depend
On something others do.

And who with genius gives to me
An added hour of cheer.
Although his face I may not see,
Is one whom I revere.

What if it was his work alone
To which my little flower is thrown
With thousands on his grave
Deep droughts of joy from him I drew.

Which never more can be.
And so, although he never knew,
He was a friend to me.

Civil Action Is Planned Against Wealthy Gangster

Government Will Execute Liens Against All Valuable Held By Capone

SEEK TO SATISFY $215,083 TAXES

Chicago Gangster Under Two Indictments In Federal Court

(International News Service)
CHICAGO, June 8.—Al Capone reputed biggest of big shot gangsters today had apparently met his downfall, an implacable foe in the slow but sure workings of the United States Government.

Under sentence for contempt of federal court and under bond for income tax evasion, Capone was assailed further by proposed civil action which would confiscate his property wherever found and sell it at public auction.

Robert E. Neely, acting collector of Internal Revenue, said that the liens would be filed soon against the gang chieftain's property to secure the $215,083 that Capone is said to owe the government on his net profits for the years 1924-1929.

"The civil action is compulsory and entirely separate from any criminal proceedings which may be taken by the office of the United States District Attorney," Neely said.

The liens, to be filed today or tomorrow, will start a search for Al's property, real or personal, in safe deposit boxes, contents of vaults or wherever it is hinted the ruler of Chicago's underworld has hidden his gains.

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

when the Yuma man ever became convinced of anything, wild horses could not keep him from doing what he believed the right thing to do. He resigned from his pastorate left the Methodist Church and entered an Episcopal Theological School, was graduated and after the proper time as a novice, became Rector of a very large and prosperous church in New York state.

He had in the meanwhile married a splendid woman. Six girls and two boys were born of this marriage.

Everything seemed to point to Health and Prosperity, and his wife would, it was suggested, now that everything had not been "health and prosperity" when he and his Warden came to the point where they could not agree upon the doctrines to be preached from the pulpit. The Yuma man ran true to form, he resigned and with his wife and eight children moved to Flagstaff, Arizona where he had been given a Mission church, his work being to cover the mission at Flagstaff and the Canon.

If there ever was a Christian who believed that "The Lord will provide" the Yuma rector is that man. He and his wife have educated all of the children and given them college educations. The children have helped themselves in this accomplishment. Two of the girls are married, one is a nurse, and the youngest is at home. The two boys are now out in the world on their own.

From Flagstaff this Idealist was transferred to Yuma. The Yuma people are proud of him. The Rectory is better finished than the homes of nine-tenths of Christian ministers all over the earth, the furniture is the accumulation of years plus the family heirlooms and the Spirit of Peace and Good Will is there.

Degrees Given Many At Penn State Today

Record Number Are Graduated In 71st Commencement Exercises

TWO FROM COUNTY MEMBERS OF CLASS

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., June 8.—With President Ralph D. Hetzel awarding a record number of 726 degrees, the 71st June commencement was held this afternoon at the Pennsylvania State college.

Dr. David A. Robertson, recently installed president of Goucher college, delivered the commencement address, taking "The Communication of Ideas" as his topic.

The only scholarship awards announced at graduation exercises were first and second honor lists, all other awards and elections to honor societies having been made public on scholarship day last month. First graduation honors went to 33 graduates representing the five per cent standing highest for the four-year course, and second honors went to 67 standing next highest.

Both the army and navy lent added color to the Penn State graduation exercises, attended by more than 2,000 spectators in Recreation hall. Seven graduates of the United States Naval academy, after spending a year at Penn State in advanced study of Diesel engines, were presented by the graduate school for master of science degrees.

Commencement events marked the close of Penn State's anniversary year in commemoration of the founding of the college 75 years ago. The first graduating class, that of 1861, totaled 11, contrasted with the 659 who received bachelor degrees and the 67 who won advanced degrees today. With this record Penn State has awarded a total of an even 1,000 degrees for the academic year 1930-31. At the 1930 summer commencement 169 received degrees, and 105 at the 1931 mid-year commencement.

The 1931 class memorial, a fund of approximately $4,000, was turned over to the college by Ray Bowers of Dutch Neck, N. J., for improvement to the campus winter sports park. Acceptance was by J. Franklin Shields, Philadelphia, president of the college board of trustees.

Many popularity honors went to David McLaughlin, Altoona, spoon man; William K. Ulerich, Latrobe, barrel man, and Frank Diedrich, Woodbury, N. J., cane man. Women's honors went to Helen Buckwalter, Scranton, bow girl; Louise Hoffeditz, York, fan girl, and Romayne Chapman, Philadelphia, slipper girl.

Commencement week closes tonight with the annual reception by President and Mrs. Hetzel and trustees, followed by the commencement ball. The college senate had Dr. Robertson as its honor guest at luncheon today.

The school of engineering once more led in the number of graduates with 170, liberal arts graduated 160, education 145, agriculture 105, chemistry and physics 57 and mineral industries 22. Bachelor of Arts degrees totaled 230 and Bachelor of Science 429.

There are two Lawrence county students numbered among the list of graduates. They are: Miss Annetta M. Burry, 2306 Highland avenue, New Castle, vocational home economics, school of education.

Ralph C. Sepic, Bessemer, electrical engineering, school of engineering. He is a member of Triangle, professional engineering fraternity. He also received a commission as second lieutenant in the engineering corps of the Army Reserve corps.

For Food... we rely chiefly on A&P

"For food and other human supplies, we rely chiefly on The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company. Our requirements have been scientifically studied by their expert dietitians," says Captain Sir Hubert Wilkins, in his recent book, "Under the North Pole," which describes the Wilkins-Ellsworth Arctic Expedition.

Under the barren wastes of the North, far from the food sources of civilization, exploring the depths of the Arctic seas in a submarine, exposed to the rigors of polar climate—the food taken on this expedition is of supreme importance. Food may spell success or failure.

That is why Sir Hubert chose A & P to supply all of the daily food on which he and his men will depend during the trying months of their venture. A & P scientists analyzed the needs of these explorers. A & P buyers selected the food. Every pound of butter, of vegetables, of meat, of coffee—every item of food in the regular diet of the Nautilus crew is furnished by A & P.

A & P is proud to render this service for so gallant an exploit. A & P is fitted to do so because of its experience in supplying the equally important food requirements of millions of customers every day.

We've never changed so many prices in our lives

The price of food has been going down so fast for the last year or more that at times we've thought we'd have to put on an extra force just to change the price tags.

For we don't lose any time reducing the prices in our stores when the food we sell costs us less... When we pay less, you pay less. And we're usually the first to bring prices down where they belong... As you've probably noticed, if you read our advertising.

But we carry over a thousand food items. And we can't very well put all of their names in the paper, no matter how low in price they are. So you can see how sensible it would be for you to come in and see for yourself.

THE PARENT PROBLEM

Old Sayings Disproved By Experiments

'Come Easy, Go Easy,' Not Learning Rule

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.
Head Division Parental Education,
Cleveland College, Western Reserve University.

"Come easy, go easy," "The harder it comes the better it sticks." Such are the common beliefs, fitted into the popular notion that nature, always kind, compensates. Facts established by scientific investigations are that slow learners are quick forgetters, as a rule, and quick learners are slow forgetters. The facts have been arrived at by having a large number of persons of varying ages memorize and recall the same material at intervals. Several able psychologists have studied this problem and have found unquestionable proof of the general rule. There are, of course, some exceptions, and you or your child may be one of them.

That person, however, who takes ample time to get meaning from the materials he is learning, be it facts and meanings he has learned, will almost surely retain such facts and meanings longer than if he had mechanically memorized the words. Pupils who acquire the practice of interpreting things they are likely to be called upon to reproduce in essence later, have but little difficulty to retain the facts involved, since these facts had become a part of their experience. On the other hand, if it is poetry or prose which must be memorized verbatim, much attention to the meaning while learning may hinder more than help. I have a notion here is a reason why many of us adults have a hard time memorizing such materials. From habit we have learned to turn the matter into our own words, rather than to memorize and recall the words exactly as they appear. Yet for practical learning such habits of translating constantly into our own experience and language is for nearly all of us the best habit we can develop.

If by "quick learner" we mean the one who merely memorizes words mechanically, as in history or a science lesson, then he will be the quick forgetter. That pupil, on the other hand, who patiently works, thinks out a practical way and thinks them through, even though he may not learn mechanical matter like addresses, telephone numbers or dates in history quickly, may retain the facts he has mastered by his plugging methods.

As a rule, however, the poor memorizer is the kind of learner who finds so many learning obstacles that he will not persevere in reasoning and in thinking through the matter to be learned; he, indeed, may not be able to reason much, not having much in store with which to reason. Pretty generally, but not always, good mechanical memory and good reasoning go together. On the other hand, some children with very good mechanical memory reason very little since they can get along in school and keep up with others in book learning without having to think or reason.

Because of the lazy habits such a child acquires, he may be a relatively quick forgetter of logical material. More likely he had never learned it in the first place. I have seen some very bright children almost or entirely fail in school because of bad habits of learning caused by too great dependence on their ease of mechanically memorizing. One boy, for instance, with an I. Q. of 145 (with 100 as a standard) had been in school for two years making good grades in reading without having learned to read a word. He had such a good mechanical memory that when called upon he could seem to read whole pages from the school reader, completely fooling his teacher.

Encourage the child who memorizes easily to cultivate the art, exercising himself in committing to memory many beautiful literary gems and useful facts; also encourage him to translate what he reads into his own words. Unless he learns early to do so, such subjects as history and science will give him no end of trouble.

Salvation Army Staff Band Will Be Here Thursday

Is One Of The Finest Musical Organizations Of Its Kind In The World

The New York Staff band of the Salvation Army, which is accompanying Commander Evangeline Booth on her tour of the eastern part of the United States and will be here Thursday, when the commander speaks in this city, is one of the foremost bands of the country.

Each member is a trained musician, many of them having had conservatory training. They are not paid any extra salaries, each being an officer in the Salvation Army and paid in accordance with their rating as an officer. Each in addition to playing in the band is attached to national headquarters in active duty in one of the departments.

Stanley Shepherd, the director, is the son of Mrs. Colonel Shepherd of the Detroit, Michigan, Home and Hospital. His mother was known to thousands of soldiers of the A. E. F. as "Ma" Shepherd, who was one of the mothers of America, who saw active service in France. While she was there, her husband continued work at Boston, Mass. Ensign Stanley Shepherd is Prison Secretary at Sing Sing Prison, New York, and is known nationally to prison authorities because of his attending the annual prison conferences.

Two of the members of the band graduated from Butler, Pa., High School, while their parents commanded the corps at that place. One of the men of the band won first prize as a composer last year at the Centennial Conference, John Philip Sousa was one of the judges. Every member of the band is a son of an officer. Some have graduated from colleges and business institutions as well as music conservatories, and hold such positions as auditors, editors, private secretaries in the army service. Many of them are authors of books and composers of music. They receive no high salaries and receive the same allowance as any other officer.

One of the group was a missionary in Java, another is on the editorial staff of the War Cry, while still another was with Commander Booth on her visit in Japan three years ago. Five of the group graduated from the Army Training college in the same group with Ensign Thomsen, the local officer.

North St. School Class Day Program

Members Of 6A Class Present Interesting Program Upon Completion Of Term

This morning the members of the 6A class of North street school presented their farewell class day program in the auditorium of the school.

Louise Taylor played the processional as the members of the class, the little girls in white dresses and the boys in white blouses, each with roses of the class colors, rose and white, pinned on them, marched to their places on the platform.

After they had taken their places the scripture lesson was read and after repeating the Lord's prayer they all joined in the salute to the flag and sang "America".

Miss Spencer, teacher of the Nature study class, gave the opening remarks after which Mae Smith played a piano solo; the readings, "My Kingdom" was given by Fred Harding.

The class history was presented by Betty Parker; the class poem given by Mary Tencer and Vivian Davidson pleased with a vocal solo. The class prophecy was given by Miriam Clinefelter, giving a destiny for each member of the class.

The chorus of the class at this time sang an appropriate song, "The Coming Out Party" after which the class will be read by Cornelia Henley; leaving all the traits of the members to those who were to take their places.

The reading "Graduating Time" was given by Florence Shaw and at this time the class presented Miss Spencer with a remembrance gift, the presentation speech being made by Alfred Hall. Miss Spencer responded most graciously to this mark of affection and esteem.

The program closed with the singing of the "Alma Mater" by the class, the words of which were composed by the students.

The class will enter George Washington Junior high school in September.

Two Defendants Fail To Appear

Charles Stunkard And Joseph J. Daugherty Absent At Court This Morning

When the cases of the commonwealth against Charles Stunkard, and Joseph J. Daugherty, were called for trial at court this morning, the defendants failed to appear.

Their bail, with Scott Stunkard, as bondsman, in the sum of $300 each, was declared forfeited and a process was issued for their arrest.

Stunkard was charged with permitting a person under the influence of liquor to operate an automobile, and Daugherty was charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor. They are residents of Washington, this state and were on the way home from New Wilmington, when they got into the ditch and was later arrested.

They were released on bail following a hearing and were notified to be in court this morning. It is thought that they may have been unavoidably detained and may yet appear. If they do not an effort will be made to get them on the process.

Observations
In 7th Ward

Roses are coming in bloom—and are stealing the limelight from the Iris and the big red poppies. A large number of roses that always receives great admiration from flower lovers is that on the porch of the home of Mrs. Anna Reed, corner of North Cedar and Clayton streets. When the roses are in bloom they are so thick that the vine can scarcely be seen.

Do you remember the days when Sample's church occupied a large part of the northern part of Mahoningtown? When much of this district was swamp land? The long walk along the fence path from here up to New Castle where the day would be spent shopping and attending the famous plays at the Opera House? Several local citizens who live on North Cedar street were reminiscing the other day and mentioned the many changes which have taken place within the past 40 years.

"Why don't you put something in the paper about our school band? Why Mahoning school has just the swellest band of any school in Western Pennsylvania. That's a fact. Ask anyone who heard them play on Memorial Day." The writer has heard that remark several times during the past several days and from several local citizens. They are proud of the school band and are immensely pleased with Miss Gladys Thomas' work during the past year. Miss Thomas is supervisor of music at the school—and is a good one.

And here is a nice compliment for the motorists who make the trolley trips back and forth from seventh ward to Washington street. James Fletcher, of North Cedar street, says that they are the most careful operators ever on this run and as a result there have been practically no accidents at the sharp turn at Cedar and Clayton streets.

And do you remember seeing the Wetlich brothers, when they were youngsters, driving the cows home down the lane which in later years developed into North Cedar street?

The other day a school student lost his gas filled toy balloon and it floated high in the air above Liberty street. One of the local spoofers asked a Madison avenue lady who was shopping, if she had seen the big balloon. She said no, where? The spoofers obligingly pointed to the sky and said that there were about forty men in it. "Really?" said the unsuspecting lady. "And it looks so small from here!"

Tomorrow is the last day of school for the crowd of youngsters in the Mahoning and Lawrence schools. They will have several months vacation from everything and needless to say, their eyes are sparkling with pleasure.

Another mystery solved very simply. The other day the news gatherer noticed several paper bags flapping in the wind, tied by strings to a couple posts in the garden of the seventh ward fire department, corner of Cherry and Cedar streets. The only reason for the bags that tell which way the wind was blowing—and who cares about that? Well, they are to scare little sparrows away, because they have been eating up the garden. Wait until the sparrows read this—and they will be back to get even!

Gavaine Demiar, Filipino, Confesses To Killing Of Dr. George E. Deely

USED KNIFE IN GRUESOME AFFAIR

Tells Police His Girl Friend Needed Money And Knew Doctor Had Some

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, June 8.—Because his girl needed some money, Gavaine Demiar, underzipped Filipino, killed Dr. George E. Deely, noted Brooklyn specialist and philanthropist, in his bachelor apartment, according to police.

Demiar, also known as George Damico, today confessed the vicious knife murder of his former employer, police said.

Demiar was arrested after he was trailed through a week-end visit to Philadelphia when he returned to New York.

"I went to his house to rob Dr. Deely," the Filipino allegedly confessed. "The girl with whom I was living needed money and I knew the doctor always kept some in the house."

Dr. Deely was found slashed to death, his pajama-clad body sprawled on the oriental rug of his luxurious apartment in the fashionable center of Brooklyn. His head had been bludgeoned. Radio wire was wrapped around his body as if an attempt had been made to strangle him.

Demiar continued his story of the crime, according to police, as follows:

"I let myself in with a key I had. As I went into his bedroom, Dr. Deely jumped out of bed."

"I punched him several times and knocked him to the floor."

"Then I grabbed my knife and stabbed him."

"I reached for the aerial wire which was wound around his throat. I wound it around several times, then stabbed him again. Then I fled."

Taken In Philadelphia

The mystery of the murder of the eminent specialist was heightened at first by the fact that the door of the bedroom was found locked.

Demiar said that he had moved from furnished room to furnished room in an effort to escape the trail of the law.

He was overtaken by detectives in Philadelphia. He was not placed under arrest until the party reached New York in order to avoid extradition complications.

The Filipino was taken to the doctor's apartment to re-enact the crime.

Dozen Of College Class At Reunion

Westminster Graduates Of '21 Stage Get-Together On School's Campus

Back in June of 1921 a class of 27 bade Westminster college farewell when they graduated and entered into the world's activities—and on Saturday night 12 of that group of 27, the majority of them separated from one another during the decade, gathered at New Westminster for a reunion.

All cares and business interests were laid aside as the class members, with their husbands and wives, met on the campus grounds for an evening of real fellowship.

It was ten years since the members had graduated and was an occasion looked forward to with interest by everyone. Preliminary arrangements had been made early in the year.

Local Man Presides

Prof. Howard A. Butler of the local senior high school served as toastmaster, and while no special orator had been named, each member told briefly but interestingly of the things that have happened during the ten years that have passed before. Things of particular interest to the class were reported.

Telegrams and letters came from members unable to attend, the contents of each being read by the toastmaster.

A special guest of honor was the Rev. Robert Hood of Pittsburgh, father of Thomas W. Hood, a member of the Class of '21. Thomas found it impossible to gather with his classmates, but Rev. Hood, for whom the reunion marked the 50th anniversary of his graduation, represented him. Rev. Hood was a member of the Class of 1881.

Officers were re-elected by the class and are as follows: Prof. Butler, New Castle, president; Miss Alice Ligo, New Wilmington, secretary; John McFadden, New Athens, O., treasurer.

Members of the class who took part in the program and the guests who came with them were:

"EDUCATION NOT ENOUGH", WALLACE TELLS SENIORS AT SUNDAY SERVICE

"Peace" Is Baccalaureate Subject At Westminster College Last Night

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., June 8.—"Man is left desolate when he has depended upon the peace of understanding," Dr. W. Charles Wallace told the 102 members of the senior class at Westminster college last night in the baccalaureate service held in the college chapel.

Taking his text from Paul's epistle to the Philippians, fourth chapter and verse seven, Dr. Wallace spoke to the seniors on "The Peace that Passeth Understanding." He pointed out that education, knowledge, culture, competence, ability, and understanding are often enough in the ordinary events of life, but that sooner or later situations arise which prove that man needs something beyond.

Starting with Paul's two attitudes toward peace, Dr. Wallace outlined the way in which man's mind develops due to experiences. As a young man, Paul thought of peace as the student thinks, Dr. Wallace said. Paul thought that all the problems of the world could be solved if he but knew the facts of life. Later in life he came to think of peace and contentment and satisfaction as beyond the knowledge of facts and in the realm of the unseen.

"The peace of understanding is the one which seems to fascinate man most," Dr. Wallace continued. We believe that if we are rich and independent materially, we can take care of the needs of the natural man. But "man has needs beyond ordinary human needs," the speaker claimed. "The cry of the human soul is still for the unseen; that which passes all understanding."

"The peace of God is communicable to us," was Dr. Wallace's next point. But, he added, we do not get this through the understanding of the mind. Such peace comes only through love and faith and worship. In giving the charge to the class, Dr. Wallace said, "Vain is all that the college has done for you unless you realize that the real peace is that which passes understanding. Culture the fellowship of Christ and share in this peace."

The senior class formed in academic procession on the south terrace at 8 o'clock and marched to the north chapel entrance, thence down the center aisle and to seats reserved in the front of the chapel. Ushers were Thomas Uber, Charles Fulton, Robert Weingartner, Louis Hazen, Raymond Black, and Andrew McDonald, Jr.

The invocation was delivered by Dr. Wallace, followed by a song, "A New Heaven and a New Earth," sung by the choir. Professor Alan B. Davis sang the solo parts. The male quartet, composed of Homer Dishour, Scott McMunn, Wayne Davidson, and Thomas Grenfell, also sang a number. Miss C. Dorothy Kirkbride was at the organ.

Chicago Banks Effect Mergers

Two Big Loop Banks In Chicago Announce Merger Completion Today

CITY HAS THREE LARGE BANKS

(International News Service) CHICAGO, June 8.—Two big Loop bank mergers were completed early today after conferences which started at noon Saturday.

The First National bank of Chicago made the only bid for the deposits of the Foreman-State National bank and the Foreman State Trust and Savings bank, amounting to nearly $200,000,000 and Arthur Reynolds, chairman of the board of the Continental Illinois bank, announced that the First National was taking over the business immediately.

Three Big Banks An hour later, consolidation of the Central Trust company of Illinois and the National Bank of the Republic was announced. These two banks have combined deposits of about $290,000,000 and now will be known as the Central Republic Bank and Trust company.

The consolidations give the city three large banks, the First National with resources of $883,000,000, the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company, with resources of $1,122,942,654 said to be the largest bank in the world under one roof and the Central Trust-National Bank of the Republic merger with resources of $350,000,000. Last night's amalgamations caused a shifting of approximately $1,250,000,000 resources.

An indemnity fund of $12,550,000, part subscribed by stockholders and directors and $10,000,000 advanced by members of the Chicago Clearing House association accompanied the transfer of the Foreman bank deposits to the First National organization, guaranteeing it against loss in liquidation.

Gettysburg Students Hear Senator Davis In Economic Speech

Senator Davis, Speaker At Commencement Exercises, At Gettysburg

"Economic Indigestion" Theme Of Talk—Warns Against Over-Production

(International News Service) GETTYSBURG, Pa., June 8.—"Economic indigestion" is one of the main contributing causes to the business ailments which have affected the United States, Senator James J. Davis (R) of Pennsylvania, declared today in an address at the commencement ceremonies of Gettysburg college.

"The eyes of industry have been bigger than its stomach, and it is evident that it has been biting off more than it can chew in its orgy of unrestricted high pressure production demands, and which is contrary to the fundamental principles of economic law and the dictates of common horse-sense," Senator Davis said. "The logical remedy that suggests itself, is for industry to self-regulate its production diet, so that the normal demands of the national consumption appetite may be soundly fulfilled."

Over-Production. Over-production alone, however, is not responsible for the economic depression from which the United States is emerging, he said, blaming the treaty of Versailles, the collapse of Germany's economic and financial structure, gross inflation in the United States, the boycott of Great Britain's products by the people of India, the slump of the silver standard, and many hang-overs of the World war.

"Unless industry itself takes sound steps to master the machine, the machine soon may master industry. Hog-wild rampages of over-production may enslave the machine as 'Frankenstein,' which may turn about on those whom it is now serving and enslave industry in economic chaos, resulting in financial ruin for the employers and stockholders, and unemployment and probable destruction for those employed in industrial production."

Menacing Shadows. "Menacing shadows of such industrial war have already appeared on the economic horizon. Several industries deeply embroiled in the mine of over-production have made futile efforts to 'stabilize' themselves by slashing selling prices to a mark barely above, and often below, the actual cost of production. This unsound economic policy is proving itself to be a fallacy, failing to bring profit to the industries themselves."

and resulting largely in intensifying business depression. "Reckless price slashing and drastic wage reduction policies are clear evidence of 'economic insanity'."

Common horse-sense points out that no industry can long survive if it sells its products below cost.

"The main foundation stones of national prosperity are the pay envelope of the workman and the purse of the farmer. When both are well-filled an era of brisk business and industrial activity is assured."

Elliott R. Hathaway, Pleads "Not Guilty" To Murder Indictment

YOUTH APPEARS AS CONFIDENT

By JAMES L. KILGALLAN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

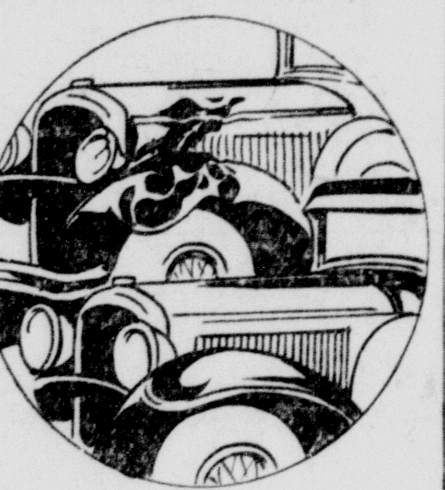

NEWPORT, R. I., June 8.—"Not guilty," was the plea made in a low tone by Elliott R. Hathaway, son of a Massachusetts state representative, when he was formally placed on trial today, his 28th birthday, for the murder of Miss Verna Russell, 20, pretty young student nurse, who was strangled to death in a lonely Tiverton lane on the night of March 23.

Young Hathaway, a rugged, blonde chap, wearing a new blue suit and a light blue tie, was summoned before the judge to plead to the indictment shortly after the trial began. His reply could hardly be heard 15 feet away. As he walked back to his seat at defense counsel table a grim little smile lurked in the corner of his mouth.

Dr. Bennett, in his inspiring, challenging message to the graduates, declared in part:

Dr. Bennett's Sermon.

There is no question about the fact that one of the common sins of our day is a lack of appreciation. We younger people of this generation have so many blessings and privileges at our disposal that we have come to the place where we take all of these things for granted as though society owed all this to us. We probably never stop to think of the debt of appreciation that we should have for all those of our own day, as well as those who lived before us, who have done so much to make possible for us these blessings and privileges. It is the same experience over again that Jesus had after He had cleansed the temple and only one had the thoughtfulness to return to thank Him who had given him his desired blessing of good health.

However, there is at least one man who had the art of appreciation and that man was the great Apostle Paul. In Romans 1:14 the apostle says, "I am debtor both to Greeks and to barbarians, both to the wise and to the foolish." What the apostle means to say in this verse is that he owes a particular kind of debt to all those about him who made up the society of his day. There is no question about the fact that one of the important reasons why this great man was so willing to give 30 years of his life to a sacrificial devotion in the service of God and his fellowmen, was because of this sense of his indebtedness to others. This same feeling of indebtedness Jesus tried to impress upon His own disciples when He said, "Others have labored and ye are entered into their labor."

So I believe there is no better suggestion that I can bring to this group of young people who have just completed their high school education and who are about to take a larger place of responsibility in the society of which they are a very important part. It would be a wonderful thing if all of us could go out into the world of activity with the feeling that all of the good things of life that we have and enjoy have come to us through the unselfish labors and sacrifices of others and that with everyone of us there is a debt that we owe to some others that never can be fully repaid.

Owe Parents Debt.

Among our unpaid debts one of utmost importance is the debt that we owe to our parents. Possibly many of us seldom stop to think of what our parents have done for us. The gift of life does hold many things for us that are very dear and precious. Life also holds many untold possibilities in happiness and in usefulness. And yet without the love and sacrifice of our parents none of these things would have been possible. Then, too, we must not forget what home means to most of us. Possibly some of you young people have not yet realized what home really means to you, but some day after you have been away from home for some time or if through the death of loved ones the home circle should be broken up, then you may come to realize what home really means.

There is no doubt but that the home is the foundation institution of society. Here again may I say that it matters not how much we may think we are doing for our parents yet we never can fully repay them for the gift of life and home. Still further should we realize the debt that we owe to our parents for making our education possible. I venture to say that there are few members in this graduating class tonight but who have been entirely dependent upon their parents for making this much of their education possible. Also, many of you expect to go on to college and university and most of those of you who will have this added opportunity, again will be dependent upon the love and sacrifice of your parents. So, whatever you may have done and whatever you may yet do in the future to show your appreciation to your parents for all that they have done and have made possible for you, you never can fully repay the debt of love that you owe them.

Another—Ourselves.

Another very important debt that we owe to ourselves is the debt that we owe to ourselves. "To thine own self be true and it will follow as the night the day, thou canst not be false to any man" is just as true now as when it was written by Shakespeare. Whatever success we may have today or in the future depends so much upon ourselves that we cannot afford to forget this responsibility in the matter of our own conduct and development. Every young person owes it to himself to see that he has a normal development physically, intellectually and spiritually. Until we have attained to the greatest degree of accomplishment in all of these three vital experiences of life, just so long will the debt to ourselves remain unpaid.

Still another of our unpaid debts is the one we owe to our country. It seems to be a general feeling in these days that our country owes everything to us, including a living. I fear, however, that most of us forget that our country has done far more for us than we can ever repay in a lifetime of service. There is no question about the fact but that we live in the greatest country in the world and, in spite of many recognized weaknesses, we still believe it is the land of opportunity, especially for young people. These privileges and opportunities of our country have been made possible for us by a wonderful spirit of sacrifice and service on the part of such men as Washington, Lincoln and a host of others. Certainly the words of Jesus are true as applied here when He said, "Others have labored and ye are entered into their labors."

Then Society Next.

Then, too, we must not forget the debt we owe to society. By society I mean the rest of the people in the world about us who live today as well as the innumerable hosts who have lived in other days. Practically everything in our everyday life that we regard either as a necessity or a luxury we owe to somebody else. The food we eat, the clothes we wear, the houses we live in, have all been made possible for us by others. This fact is true also as it applies to our educational system. Splendid school buildings with their wonderful equipment, excellently trained teachers, are at our disposal only because someone else has been willing to pay the price. Even the common things of life in which we find enjoyment and pleasure we owe to others. If we, too, should spend our lives in the service of our fellowmen we never could fully repay the debt of gratitude that we owe to the multitudes of others who have made our present social order possible.

Last, but by no means least, is the unpaid debt that we owe to God. It is a good thing for us to remember the statement of the scriptures which says: "God is the giver of every good and perfect gift, that it is in Him we live and move and have our being and that He Himself gives to us life and breath and all things." Possibly many of us seldom stop to think of how much we owe to that fundamental and universal experience of mankind which we call religion. It is religion that has given to us power, stability of character, our ideals of ethics and morals, without which society could not exist for one day. Then, too, there are certain other experiences that come to most of us who live to the age of maturity, experiences of sorrow and disappointment, and when these experiences do come our religion is the only thing that can successfully tide us over these trials and difficulties. In order that our religion could be handed down to us it was necessary for many others to give their lives in service and sacrifice. Time would fail us to tell of the noble heroes and martyrs, beginning with Moses and continuing down through the middle ages to the present day, who were willing to give all they had even including life itself in order that the religion of God might be preserved. Then, too, especially to those of us who are Christians, do we remember the great sacrifice of Christ that He was so willing to make in order that we might enjoy the benefits and hopes of the new religion which He Himself came to bring. Should we dedicate every day of our life to the service of God we never could even begin to repay the great debt of love and gratitude to Him who has done so much for us.

Members of the graduating class, it seems hardly necessary for me to remind you that we are living in the greatest day in the history of the world. We have just been trying to remind you of the fact that no other generation has been able to enjoy the privileges and opportunities that are ours today. But what are we going to do about it? Are we willing to be mere parasites in society accepting everything that others have made possible for us by giving nothing in return? Or, rather, shall we not recognize that there is a multiple of unpaid debts that we owe to others and in a spirit of humility be willing to try to repay some of these debts by doing all that we can for God and for our fellowmen in order that we too may make some little contribution to the great world of which we ourselves are a part.

Sunday's Rain Is Not Heaviest Fall During Month

Eleven - Hundredths Inches
More Was Recorded By Station Here May 7

Although it rained more than generously Sunday, the amount of precipitation was slightly less than that of May 7, when the amount recorded was one and seven-tenths inches. Sunday's rain amounted to one and fifty-nine-hundredths inches. This coupled with almost an half inch which fell Saturday brought the precipitation over the week end to two and seven-hundredths inches. Local streams became raging torrents last evening. Big Run rising rapidly, while the Neshannock also rose several feet. The Shenango rose three feet between Sunday morning and this morning, and will probably continue going up.

If present conditions continue, June should also witness an excess in precipitation, both April and May having recorded more than the average amount. Already two and a half inches of rain has fallen this month.

Patients May Do Harm By Drastic Treatments, Dr. Clendening Warns

Craze For Internal Baths Is One Of Real Dangers Of Colitis, Physician's Experience Proves

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
Colitis is a popular diagnosis just at present. To me, one of the most amusing parts of Dr. Axel Munthe's popular book, "The Story of San Michele," was his description of how he came to invent the disease "colitis." Some women who were rich and pampered and nervous and unhappy, and who had vague pains all over the abdomen came to him, and because he had not the slightest idea what was the matter with them but knew they would feel more comfortable if they had a name for their disease, told them they had colitis. And the term became popular and still is.

Literally, colitis means inflammation of the colon. We have been considering a special form of it, mucous colitis, this week. Here I am speaking of a similar form. While the symptoms are usually emphasized in nervous and prospective people, there is frequently a real basis for the disease.

One of the real dangers of the disease is that the patients will do themselves actual harm by too drastic treatments. The craze which has lately swept over the country to give what is called an internal bath and clear out every particle of poison from the large bowel is much better calculated to cause disease than it is to cure it. Every physician sees many patients who have been reduced to serious ill health by repeated high enemas and injudicious attempts to get a colon tube clear up to the head of the large bowel and flush it out.

It is always easy to get a great deal of refuse away from the large bowel, and the appearance of this impresses the patient with the necessity for more treatments. But it must be remembered that the colon is designed by nature to harbor a great deal of noxious material, and it is well adapted to prevent it from being absorbed. The vigorous treatments referred to irritate rather than soothe the bowel, and finally cause actual infections and ulcerations. The best authorities on the subject are unanimous in preaching against the continuous and repeated use of enemas over any prolonged period of time.

In fact, the best authorities are agreed that it is rarely possible to get a colon tube past the first part of the large bowel. Thus, to quote (and amend) one:
"It is of great importance that the enema should be properly instituted. People are frequently taught to pass the tube as far up the bowel as possible, and are rarely satisfied unless twelve or more inches have been introduced. Until comparatively recently, I understood this was general practice, but the pelvic colon joins the lower bowel at an acute angle four and one-half inches beyond the anus and it is a physical impossibility to pass a rubber tube beyond this except through a metal instrument which has been manipulated beyond the angle. This was proved long ago by Surgeon Goodhart in the post mortem room in 1900, and again more recently I demonstrated the same fact with the X-ray, which shows that the tube turns back when the angle is reached and coils up in the last four inches of the lower bowel."

Completely cleaning out the large intestine is comparable to the herculean task of cleaning the Aegean stables, because refuse enters the large intestine faster than the hose can clean it out.

IN NEW CASTLE

Lawrence county which was formed from part of Beaver and Butler counties by an act of legislature approved March 20, 1849, was within the jurisdiction of the Seventeenth Judicial District of Pennsylvania formed in 1831. In the formation of the Seventeenth Judicial district in 1831 John Bredin of Butler was appointed as president judge by Governor George Wolf. He continued in that capacity until May 21, 1851 when he died suddenly. Daniel Agnew was appointed by Governor William F. Johnston as the successor of Judge Bredin. Judge Agnew was elected as a member of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania in 1853, where he continued for fifteen years. Lawrence L. McGiffin was appointed as the successor to Judge Agnew in the local district by Governor Andrew G. Curtin. In 1874, Ebenezer McJunkin and James Bredin, son of the first president judge and James Bredin the additional judge. In 1884, John McMichael and Aaron L. Hazen were elected, and Hazen became president judge. Judge McMichael died in 1892 and J. Norman Martin was appointed to fill the vacancy by Gov. Robt. E. Pattison. John M. Greer of Butler was elected at the annual election and took office in January 1893. Lawrence county became a separate district by the act of April 28, 1893 and Judge Hazen became its president judge, while John Greer became president judge of Butler county. Judge Hazen continued until the expiration of his commission in January 1895, when he was succeeded by William D. Wallace. Judge William E. Porter was the next judge. He was followed by Judge S. P. Emery. Judge R. L. Hildebrand followed Judge Porter and is still on the bench here as president judge, due to the fact that Lawrence county now has two judges, Judge James A. Chambers being the additional law judge of the district known as the Fifty-Third Judicial District. Tomorrow: Some of the school history of Lawrence County.

New Yorkers who insist upon being known as "Manhattanites" rather than run the risk of identification with Brooklyn, Queens, or Bronx, probably are not aware that there are six Manhattans in the United States besides the little island within the city of New York.

One of two of them are scarcely more than dots on the map; but others are communities of considerable importance.

The most famous Manhattan outside of New York is probably that of Eastern Kansas, distinguished by the State Agricultural College, meeting place of advanced farm practice and higher learning.

BUSINESS DIPLOMACY

"One of our greatest problems," said the manufacturer in one of the big shops, "is the ample woman, just touching forty, who insists upon garments designed for misses, and who resents accusing tags. As a means of overcoming difficulties in this direction we have misses' sizes cut fuller than a few years ago. This makes it possible for the customer who formerly had to buy in the women's section, to go now to the misses' department. It enhances her self esteem and helps to keep our Dayton Chimes ringing."

That's one illusion gone.

HERE'S ANOTHER:

The story about Betsy Ross, who made flags for a living, being called into conference with George Washington, Robert Morris and Gen. George Ross, her uncle, and the four of them designing the American flag, on June 14, 1777, Betsy making the first one herself, is a lot of boloney.

The "last and final" smash comes in a message from far-off Copenhagen, to New York, delivered by Doc Ditlef Nielsen, affecting the downfall of Adam in the Garden of Eden.

What Eve handed Adam, the scientist says, was an Asiatic fruit called peri, which is now known as a pine cone. Nielsen discovered a picture which, he said, was made in early Babylonian times, and which showed Adam and Eve under a pine tree, with a pine cone.

Exercises Held By Trade School
Class Of Thirty Receives Diplomas At Exercises This Morning

With the entire student body in attendance, thirty youths enrolled in the Trade School at Ben Franklin Junior high received their diplomas this morning.

Exercises were held in the school auditorium, when a program was presented by members of the class.

Charles A. Bolen, plant superintendent of the Bell Telephone Company addressed the members of the class on "Opportunities in Employment," outlining the causes for success or failure among those starting out on a career.

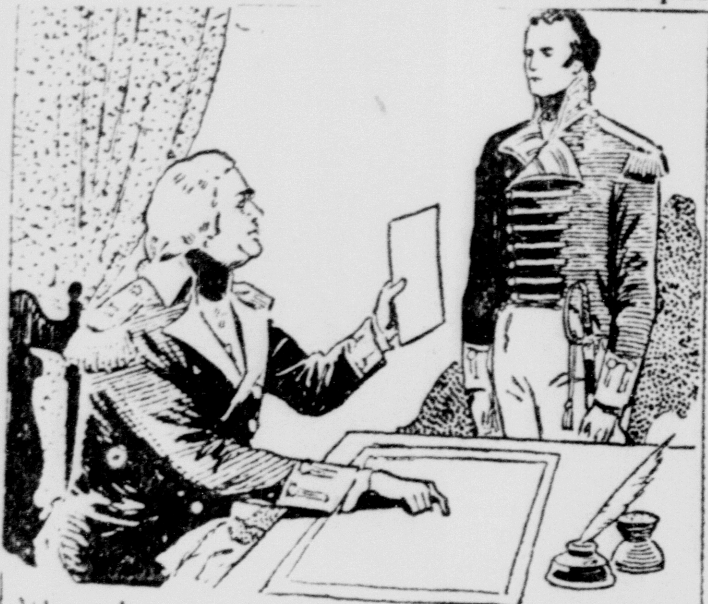

He outlined ten reasons why many fail to succeed, namely that some are not fitted for the job, others show a lack of interest, lack initiative, enthusiasm, ability to learn, courage, self confidence, and personality, or are not industrious.

He urged the boys to look for opportunity rather than a job, and explained how ambition would carry one far along the path-way of life.

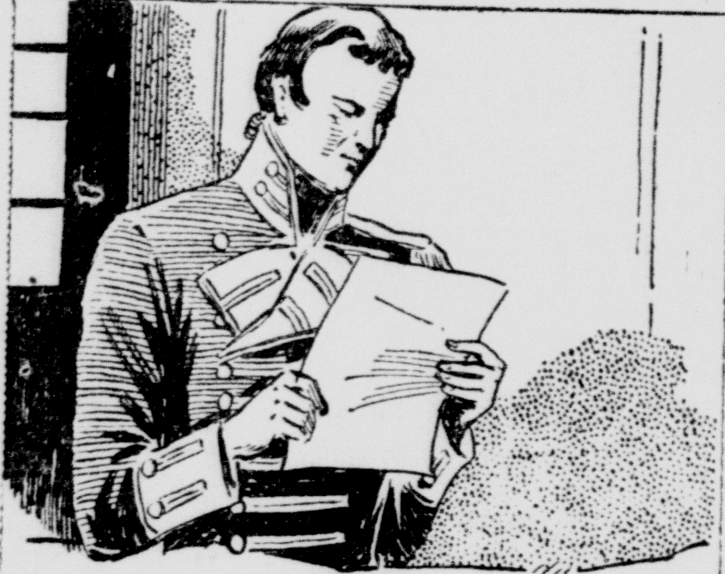

HIGHLIGHTS OF HISTORY

By J. Carroll Mansfield

1. Zebulon Pike—His First Expedition

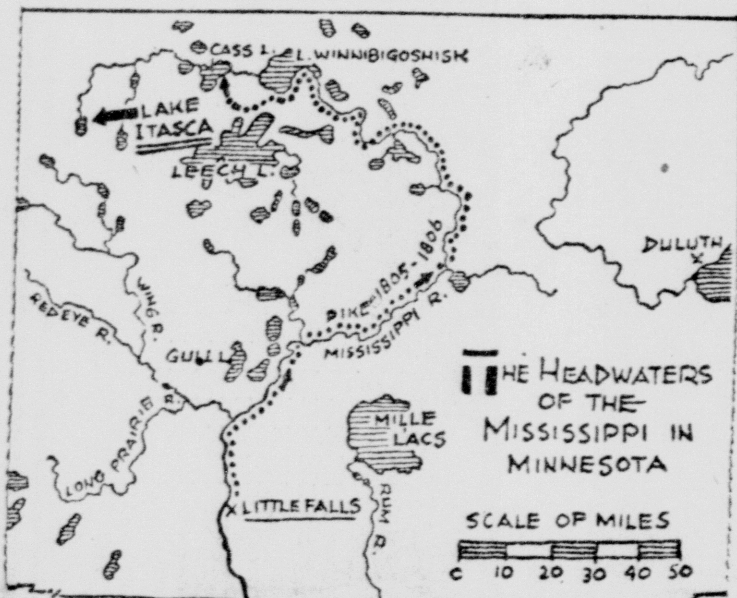

WHILE LEWIS AND CLARK WERE ON THEIR WAY TO THE PACIFIC, GENERAL WILKINSON, AMERICAN MILITARY COMMANDER IN LOUISIANA TERRITORY, IN THE SUMMER OF 1805 SENT YOUNG LIEUTENANT ZEBULON PIKE WITH A SMALL FORCE TO EXPLORE THE MISSISSIPPI RIVER TO ITS SOURCE...

EXPLORATION WAS, HOWEVER, ONLY A PART OF PIKE'S ORDERS. HE WAS TO MAKE PEACE WITH THE INDIANS OF THE NORTH COUNTRY, PICK SITES FOR FUTURE FRONTIER FORTS AND LEARN ALL HE COULD ABOUT THIS UNKNOWN REGION.

(Copyright, 1931, by J. Carroll Mansfield)

FINDING THE SOURCE OF THE MISSISSIPPI WAS A MUCH HARDER TASK THAN ONE WOULD SUPPOSE. THE HEADWATERS OF THE RIVER ARE FED FROM COUNTLESS SMALL LAKES, AND LOCATING THE TRUE SOURCE WAS LIKE LOOKING FOR A NEEDLE IN A HAYSTACK.

PIKE WAS STILL FAR FROM HIS GOAL WHEN WINTER CAME, FREEZING LAKES AND STREAMS, BURYING THE VAGUE FOREST TRAILS UNDER DEEP SNOWDRIFTS AND BRINGING HARSHIPS TO THE EXPLORERS.

Rocco To Fight Stanley Poreda

Dime Has Promising Heavyweight Hope In Jim Velanage

OTHER MANAGERS TUTORING BOXERS

Emmett Rocco, Ellwood City's star son of punch, has been matched to fight Stanley Poreda, Jersey City giant in the main bout of a show to be staged by Charles Morotta, at Cleveland, June 17. Poreda weighs 198 pounds and is six feet one inch tall.

Not long ago Poreda outpunched Johnny Risks in New York. According to reports the first punch Poreda threw took the fire out of Johnny and the Jersey City heavyweight scored a clean-cut victory with his long left and innumerable rights to the head.

Should Rocco top Poreda in their coming bout it is almost a foregone conclusion that when Stribling contends for Max Schmeling's crown the crowd will find Rocco fighting someone on the bill. Western Pennsylvania fans would like to see its best heavyweight in action on July 3 in the Cleveland stadium.

Rocco is training hard for the fight with Poreda and Mickey Solomon, also under the banner of Joseph Alexander, is romping daily with Emmett. Solomon is one of the sweetest boxers in this section and he has suffered several reverses six months ago he is now in real good fighting condition.

It is probable that Solomon will get a chance to toss wallops with Buck McTiernan. Their quarrel has been a sort of zigzag affair for years and there are many fans who think that for sure that Solomon is in good condition would wager the family flivver on his chances of giving Buck a real fight.

A heavyweight now being developed and who will bear watching is Jim Velanage, a Croatian. Jim is under the tutelage of Jimmy Dime, the past master in punch who put Tony Ross, Tom McMahon and Dan Diney in the limelight years ago. They fought the best and beat more heavily than those who beat them.

It has long been a recognized fact that Dime has always been a successful tutor and whenever he found a fighter who had the backbone and faculty of employing his brain to think with, could land his somewhere. He claims now that Velanage is as good a puncher as there is and he is polishing him up on boxing.

Good Puncher
Dime is decidedly anxious to get him a tryout against any of the better class of heavyweights in this section. To point out his hitting ability, it is reported by Claude Patton that so far no training mates have been able to take any of his wallops, even though the punches are only half loaded.

Dime also has a couple of lightweight who are as good as any in this section. They are Paris Kid Cangey and Jimmy Scott. Paris has been campaigning for sometime and recently flattened Johnny Kusie in three rounds. Scott has had an interesting career as an amateur and is now ready for boys like Battling Gitzy.

Bob Laterra is drilling Ray Ritchie, featherweight and has also put Johnny Banko into the ring. Johnny underwent an appendix removal some months ago but is now doing gymnasium work and Senior Laterra hopes to get his two punches in some of the clubs in this section.

Jim Dyert and Roy Smith, co-developers believe that Homer Gray, the middleweight of color, will get somewhere and they're ready to sic him on any of the boys who are creeping into the limelight. He smashed Jackie White for a decision in his last appearance at Castle bowl.

Willie Stribling the Grant Street lightweight, is coming along as is Bearcat Wright, a junior welterweight. Smith & Dyert, exploiters of things pugilistic explosive, as they term themselves, have about 20 fighters of all sizes, color and they're anxious for work, no difference where it may be.

Battling Terry, foxy veteran of scores of fights is drilling Billy West, junior lightweight, Frankie Frey, middleweight and Billy Mido, bantamweight and will soon get West a chance to fight in Pittsburgh. West has shown good promise. Frey is tough and Mido has fought several good fights.

Youngsters Training
Joe Ritchie is proud of his Vito Mangine, the junior lightweight who beat Stribling in their Castle bowl fight and he now is threatening to flash Morrie Stribling upon the fans. Morrie is a 170 pounder who is preparing to fight one of the Fawcetts, either Warren or Tom and soon will get the chance.

In the meantime the Grant Street section looks like a haven for fighters. It is believed there are more boys training in this section than any other in the city. The fights the Grant Street lads have been putting up have pleased the fans and they ain't for the cause.

Archie Cumo believes that his long-armed Merle Gibson, middleweight can now give Homer Gray all the meecham complexioned lad desires and it may come to pass that they may tangle somewhere. Merle won his last fight and Joe Testa proved the victor.

Lloyd Green on Forest street, is getting in shape in anticipation of catching on in one of the bouts should the All-County boxing carnival be staged. Lloyd weighs 150, stands five feet 11, and when trained down will probably weigh 145. Within a week or two he will be ready for anyone with the same experience.

Wampum has entered several boys names for the contests proposed, but so far Harlanburg Pulaski, Mount Jackson and other surrounding towns have not but when the time comes for the fistc whirligig it is believed that representatives of the rural towns will be found striving for glove honors.

'Wee Scot' Uses Longer Shafts For Leverage

By ROY GROVE
Central Press Golf Writer

That "Wee Scot," Bobby Cruickshank, is the one exponent of the professional pivot.

Cruickshank is not much more than five feet tall and uses every ounce of leverage and weight for his long tee shots. However, he gets a longer tee shot than most of his brother professionals who stand a full six feet.

The average golfer of small stature is under the impression that he must have clubs of short length. This theory is just reversed by Cruickshank. He uses a longer stick than the taller pro, gaining more leverage with perfect timing.

This proves the theory of the well-timed swing and the perfect pivot between the top of the head and well-grounded foot work.

Cruickshank's shoulders are held in perfect position for the arc in coming around and following through the ball.

The average golfer, as shown in the illustration, tends to pull back on the drive in his effort to swing into the ball for long distances.

The average golfer will get less distance by this action than if he had stood with no effort at all and let the club carry the ball from the tee.

Next: The Pitch Shot.

HAPPENINGS IN WORLD OF SPORT

Eastern Teams Fare Badly In National Loop

Pittsburgh, Chicago And St. Louis Continue To Win From Eastern Teams

CLEVELAND TEAM PICKS UP SPEED

By LES CONKLIN
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, June 8.—In inter-sectional tilts during the week ending today the Eastern clubs in the National League fared as badly as did the Western clubs in the American League.

The Cardinals, Cubs, Pirates and Reds compiled a record of eighteen victories and nine defeats against the invading Eastern teams in the Heydler organization for a percentage of .667. Meanwhile the Athletics, Senators, Yankees and Red Sox continued to bowl over Western opposition in the junior loop at the same rate, winning sixteen games and losing eight.

Cleveland was the lone exception. Although the winning streak of the Indians was snapped at ten games, they won four out of six games during the week.

Cards Set Pace
Checking the thrush of New York and Brooklyn, the Cardinals continued to set the pace in the National League with six victories out of eight starts. The Cubs, who now loom as the champions' most dangerous rivals as the result of Hack Wilson's comeback, won four out of six and took second place away from the Giants.

McGraw's team was the big flop of the week, losing five out of six games. The Phillies dropped four out of five and Brooklyn and Boston each lost four of seven.

Dan Howley's Cincinnati Reds put on their best sport of the year, winning five straight and winding up the week with a record of five wins and three setbacks. Pittsburgh also improved, taking three out of five games.

Senators Winning
Washington continued its fast pace in the American League by losing only one out of six but failed to gain an inch on the champion Athletics, who compiled exactly the same record.

The Yankees gained no better than an even break in six starts. Vernon Gomez, who beat Cleveland yesterday, is the only reliable hurler on McCarthy's pitching staff at present. The club also is weak at third base due to the weak batting of Tony Lazzeri, who continues to wallow in the worst slump of his career.

Boston's Red Sox broke even in six games and climbed out of the cellar as the St. Louis Browns fell into it by losing four out of six. Detroit and Chicago each dropped five out of six.

Dr. Sphar saved his own life by hanging to the boat until Mike Spridk, owner and life guard at the Charleroi beach, reached the scene. Mr. Gregg leaves a wife and seven children.

Hoarded Coins Are Taken By Burglar

ALLIANCE, O., June 8.—He had saved his pennies for years and Joe Fratoni, Alliance. He kept them in a little wooden box in the cupboard in the kitchen. He had accumulated from 1,000 to 1,200 of the coins, he didn't know the exact number. Yesterday Joe left home and when he returned at 10 p. m. the cupboard was bare. Robbers had entered the house in his absence and found the box of pennies.

Bobby Jones won the Open last year with a record 291 over the St. Andrew course in Scotland. Insert shows the overlapping grip which Armour uses.

Teachers Enjoy Week-End Event

Ben Franklin Junior High Teachers Inaugurate Season At Camp East Brook

A group of women, each of whom is a member of the Benjamin Franklin junior high school faculty, enjoyed the week-end at Camp East Brook, the Y. W. C. A. girls' camp. They left on Friday evening after school hours and stayed at the delightful camp through Sunday.

The magnificent cement swimming pool had been filled in readiness for the week-end group, the grounds were in excellent trim and in every way the party was a huge success. In a way it was a farewell party, as the teachers will part for their homes and vacations when school ends on Tuesday.

NEW YORK STOCKS

Market Prices Fluctuate In Early Trading Today

(International News Service)
NEW YORK, June 8.—The Railroad stocks led the market into a lower level of prices in the early trading today. Pennsylvania Railroad's income statement for the first quarter of the year, showing a deficit of $1,200,000, against a surplus of $11,000,000 in the same period last year, was responsible for heavy selling in that stock around 45, down 2 points from Saturday's close. Union Pacific, Aitchison, New York Central and other rails fell off an additional 2 to 4 points, bringing prices 4 to 10 points from last Friday's peaks.

Once again the market faced an accumulation of unfavorable week-end operating and earnings reports from Business and Industrial corporations of various kinds, and the bulk of the active stocks were unable to rally from Saturday's slow decline. U. S. Steel started the week about 2 points lower and at 86½ showed a loss of 7 points from the high of the previous week. The main Industrials and Utilities followed in the same path, but in most cases the low prices of the period were recorded at the opening, with at least a half-hearted attempt to recover as the first hour advanced.

During the bulk of the second hour the market was practically motionless, with narrow professional trading in a dozen or more of the speculative favorites. Prices were inclined slightly upward from the opening levels, and in a few cases, notably General Motors, General Electric, Westinghouse and American Can, fractional gains over last week's finals were recorded. The market received little help or inspiration from commodity markets, cotton falling off 55 cents a bale and Grain selling slightly lower. Call money was unchanged at 1½ per cent.

White Refuses To O. K. Settlement

Says City Cannot Stop Street Work To Suit Property Owners

City Solicitor Robert McKinney White today presented an opinion to council which he said he could not recommend that the city make a financial settlement with Mrs. George Frey, Addis street, relative to her claim that paint on her house had been ruined as the result of municipal street employees work in Addis Street and Huron avenue. Council ordered a copy of the opinion be sent to Mrs. Frey.

She had claimed that the scraper had operated while the frame dwelling, used as a store and residence, was being painted which resulted in dust and dirt flying on the wet paint. White said in the opinion it was the duty of the city to keep the thoroughfares in good condition and said the city could not delay its work to suit the convenience of property-owners.

The solicitor, who inspected the painting, said there was an indication that dirt had lodged on the Huron avenue side of the house but added he could not recommend a settlement and did not believe that any liability on the part of the city could be proved in court.

In War on Stage

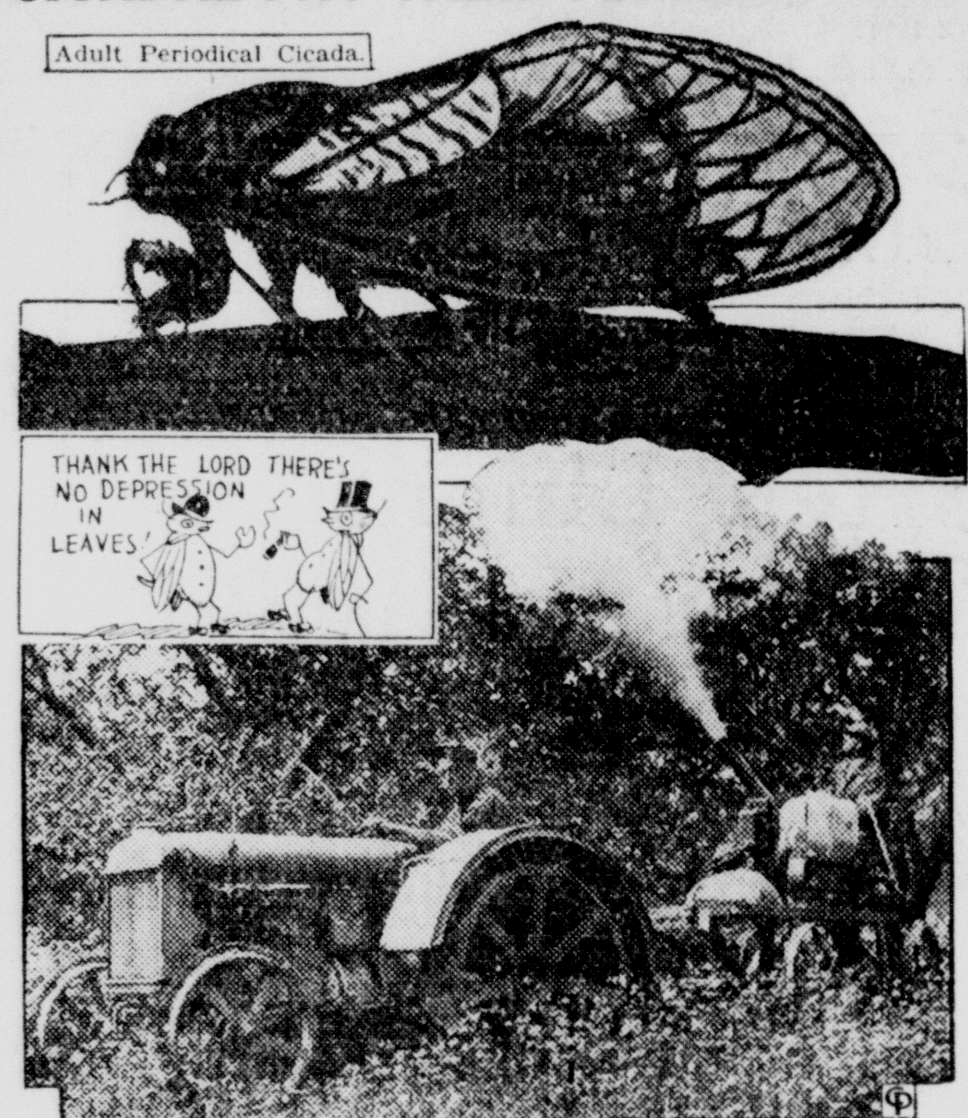

The tradition that the "show must go on" suffered a relapse of a half hour in the Morocco Theatre, New York, recently while two actors stepped out of their roles to express themselves with blows. Fortunio Bonanova (above), former bullfighter, brought the affair to police attention when he filed a complaint charging that Arthur Talbot, another actor, had made threats against his life over the attentions Bonanova paid to a woman who was "just a friend."

With an academic record showing a total of 902 out of a possible thousand points, Midshipman Thomas D. Tyra, of St. Paul, Minn., is this year's honor man of the Annapolis graduating class. Tyra played football for four years at the Naval Academy and was for two seasons a member of the crew. He served on various committees and occasionally helped out the wife team.

CICADAE PAY THEIR PERIODIC VISIT

Ridding fruit trees of worms and bugs.

For the first time since the nations of Europe became inflamed with the passions of war, in 1914, Mr. and Mrs. Cicadae (17-year cicadas to you) have come to pay a visit to mid-western states. The locusts, whose resonant song can be heard on hot summer days, are inch-and-a-half greenish bugs, with large transparent wings, a ferocious looking head and harmless stinger. Eggs are laid in trees and the larvae are blown off on the ground. They then burrow into the soil where they sink their mouth-parts into roots and remain there for a period of 17 years.

Better Prosecution Of Laws Is Needed

(International News Service)
WASHINGTON, June 8.—What this country needs is not more laws, but better prosecution of the laws already on the statute books. That is the verdict of the Wickham law enforcement commission, rendered Monday after months of investigation into the prosecution records of the country and the manner in which prosecutors' offices are administered. Without getting specific, the commission found in some places "a close connection between corrupt local political organizations and criminal organizations."

Nearly half the five thousand visitors and delegates expected to crowd the town during the convention had arrived today and committees in charge of the convention arrangements were busy finding quarters for the influx.

No business was slated for transaction at today's sessions, and two brief patriotic exercises constituted the only formal program. In Buchanan Park, the daughters of Union Veterans presented a memorial to the Grand Army of the Republic and this afternoon the Sons of Union Veterans will present a

A list of important and interesting events followed in quick succession at the school this week. During the baccalaureate service held in the school Sunday evening, Rev. George W. Landis of New Castle was the principal speaker.

An important program replete with parts by members of the class will be held during the Class Night program to be held this evening.

Baccalaureate
Rev. George W. Landis of the First Baptist church of New Castle, speaking on "Success" as the principal speaker at the baccalaureate service of the Bessemer High school in the school auditorium last evening took the subject of Lot and Sodom as his symbols of what produces success in the life of the average individual.

The class of 25 which will be graduated, Tuesday evening followed by the faculty members, marched into the auditorium for the service.

The invocation was delivered by Rev. W. J. Engle, pastor of the Bessemer Presbyterian church. Harold J. Colton, supervising principal of Bessemer schools, was chairman of the evening and introduced the various speakers.

Speaking of the Bible incident, Rev. Landis pointed out that Lot, in his desire to obtain wealth, political power and prestige, gave up the teaching of his fathers and was successful in obtaining his desires, but when Sodom was turned into ashes nothing was left of Lot's acquisitions, except the pile of ashes. Rev. Landis used this parallel to show his young listeners that it was not advisable to leave God out of their lives.

Father Perrullo of the Bessemer Catholic church delivered the benediction.
